

Blood Donation Camp
at
Sri Ramkrishna Sarada Vidyamaahapitha Organized by NCC Unit, SRSVM
in collaboration with Arambagh SDO Hospital Blood Bank

A blood donation camp was held on 22th November, 2020 at the college campus. It was organized by NCC unit of Sri Ramkrishna Sarada VidyaMahapitha, in collaboration with Arambagh SDO Hospital Blood Bank, Arambagh, Hooghly.

The aim of the blood donation camp is to raise awareness among students about the potential to save lives and improve their own health through blood donation. The objectives include educating participants about the importance of regular blood donation, dispelling myths about the process, and encouraging a sense of responsibility towards the well-being of others. By emphasizing these points, the camp hopes to motivate more individuals to donate blood and contribute to a healthier community. Additionally, the objective is to contribute to the reliable and safe operation of blood services, ensuring a steady supply of blood for those in need. The camp involves more than 38 students and teachers who are participating to contribute towards this cause.

The blood donation camp had several positive outcomes. It created a sense of satisfaction among participants, knowing that their donation could potentially save a life. The program also highlighted the significance of this rare yet crucial service, emphasizing its importance within the community. Moreover, the camp inspired others to step forward and contribute to this noble cause, encouraging them to overcome any fears associated with blood donation.
